10229 an effort being made by the holders of the preferred stock in the Boston and Maine to bring the New York Central into the management of the railroad and that conferences had been held with A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central, to bring this about.

Strong opposition to any medification of the original dissolution order was eral of Massachusetts, and by Conrad W. Crooker, representing a minority committee of the stockholders of the Boston and Maine.

E. G. Buckland, vice-president and general counsel for the New Haven, under examination by Moorfield Storey of Boston, attorney for the railroad, testified that the acceptance of the decree of 1913 had been forced on the New Haven. New financing was in progress when the Government began its antitrust suit and the bankers who were to undertake the financing advised the New Haven directorate that a controversy with the Government at that paricular time would prove fatal. The New Haven thus was faced, Mr. Buckland said, with the alternative of consenting to the dissolution decree or bankruptcy.

years ago by several steel companies under the Webb-Pomerene act to handle their export business, according to E. A. S. Clarke, its president. Mr. Clarke said also that he did not expect that the proposed merger of six other independent concerns would affect otherwise than favorably the Consolidated company. Of these six all except two, the Steel and Tube Company are members and stockholders of the Consolidated. Mr. Clarke indicated his belief that if the merger should be consummated those two would come in. The present members of the Consolidated are the Bethlehem Steel Company, the Lukens Steel Company, the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, the Republic Iron and Steel Company, the Steel Company, the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, the Republic Iron and Steel Company, the Trumbull Steel Company, the Wiltaker-Glenner Company and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, the Wiltaker-Glenner Company, the Wiltaker-Glenner Company, the Wiltaker-Glenner Company, the Wiltaker-Glenner Company and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.
